There is a dead horse lying near the colored school house, if removed would give Prof. Austin and his pupils a chance to breathe pure air, to say nothing of other people who come to our little village.

One day last week while on her way home from Lee City, Miss Sallie Crucey, of Lacy creek, was thrown from her horse and, if she had not fallen in Red river, might have sustained some serious injuries. She thinks one does not always need a preacher along when immersion is needed.

In company with Woodson Little, Dial Jones and Jeff Crucey, we visited Lee City Thursday and while there enjoyed a good supper at the home of that "prince of good fellows" Clay Rose, and was also present at the spelling bee given by J. W. Taulbee at the school house, and can say that we never enjoyed ourselves better.

The mountain people are after so long a time awakening to a sense of their duty towards the proposed line of railroad, which has been a subject of discussion for four years past. The people of the mountains see clearly that they can never prosper until they enjoy the blessing of a railroad. That the road is going to be built at once there is no doubt, and the people will realize the new era that will dawn on them in their mountain homes. It is believed by some and hoped by many that the inhabitants of the little town of Lee City will soon be awakened by the shrill whistle of the locomotive.

Big Lumber Deal.

E. S. Joubert and Floyd Day, of this place, returned Tuesday afternoon from New York, where after a week's negotiations, they on Wednesday closed a large lumber deal which will be of considerable interest not only to the citizens of the eastern Kentucky mountains, but to the lumber trade generally.

The H. Herrman Saw Mill Company, of New York, through Beckner & Joubert, its agents, sold to James Swan and Floyd Day, its entire Kentucky river property, including its new saw mill plant at Beattyville, and the logs from its standing timber in Brethitt, Perry, Knott and Letcher counties. The consideration is over $200,000. Mr. Swan, with his ample means and his connection with the big banking house of Luman, Swan & Co., of New York, and Mr. Day, himself a man of means and the most prominent lumberman in this portion of the state, making an unusually strong firm. These two gentlemen also own practically all the stock of the Clay City Lumber and Stave Company, which recently bought and is now operating, the mammoth Kentucky Union saw mill and planing mill plant and stave factory on Red river at Clay City, and Mr. Day is the principal owner of the Day Bros. Lumber Company's saw mill plant on the Kentucky river at Jackson. He is president of both the last named companies. The combined concerns expect an actual annual output of 30,000,000 feet of poplar lumber besides a large quantity of oak and walnut timber and 5,000,000 staves. It is easily seen what the active operation of such plants as these will be to many of our eastern counties whose chief product is timber.

Messrs. Day and Joubert report an excellent feeling in financial circles of the metropolis and a general concurrence in the opinion that we are on the eve of a period of great business activity and prosperity.—Winchester Democrat.

Just before the late November election some one took from my horse a pair of fair leather saddle bags. Through a friend I have located them, and if they are returned where I can get them that will be the end of it. If not, some one will have to prove the possession.

Colored Citizens Complain.

Mr. Austin, the colored teacher at Daysboro, would be pleased to have a dead horse moved from near the school house, where it fell in a ditch and died. He says he has been in many places but never had to walk over a dead horse. The scholars all like their teacher very much, and would like to have him teach for them again next session. Maybe we can get him to stay if the horse is moved.

Myrtle Franklin, daughter of Richard Franklin, who has been sick for the past two weeks, is now able to be out again.

SUPER.

No man or woman in Wolfe county, or in the mountains, for that matter, is now too poor to subscribe to THE HERALD. Just think of getting a bright newsy paper every week in the year for less than one cent a week. Can you afford to be without it, when it only costs you FIFTY CENTS A YEAR.

THE HERALD man about town dropped into John H. Pieratt's saddlery shop yesterday on a hunt for news and was attracted by the handsome display of saddles on exhibition, two of which, he was told, were the famous Minnihan pattern, and they are beauties. Mr. Pieratt, with the able assistance of his collaborer, Floyd Bailey, is turning out as nice a line of fine saddlery and harness as any shop can show, and it will pay those in quest of high quality to give him a call. Lookout for his ad in the near future.

The Ohio and Kentucky Railroad.

R. M. Bross, the leading projector of the Ohio and Kentucky railroad, and his squad of civil engineers with their tents and surveying accoutrements arrived in our city last Sunday night, and put up at the Arlington Hotel.

Early the next morning the surveyors commenced operations at the tunnel below town. They are now actively engaged on the proposed line and will complete the work in a short time. As is known in this section the proposed road begins at a connection with the L. & E. between Elkatawa and Jackson, and thence runs by way of Frozen creek and the Rose and State Road forks of Red River in Wolfe and Morgan counties, to the terminus on Caney creek, near Walnut Grove, in Morgan county.

The survey now in progress is directed towards securing ten miles of the right of way, distributed over different sections or parts of the line, and as soon as this is secured it is safe to say that work on the road will be commenced in earnest.

It is hoped nothing of a serious nature will confront the projectors in securing the ten miles right of way, so that they can begin the work of construction at once.

It has been often asked "will this road be built?" When approached upon the subject Hon. W. W. McGuire, one of the indefatigable projectors, was reluctant to talk about the matter, but after questioning him closely he said that "the prospects at the present time for building the road were never brighter."

Enough was learned from him to create a strong belief that the road is a certainty. He said that a great deal depended upon the sympathy and encouragement the people showed towards the enterprise. If they would warm to it and do nothing to obstruct it the road would certainly be built and that in a short time. It is a settled fact that the company has the capital to build the road.

The question is asked will this new road be of any benefit to Jackson? We believe it will, though some hold to a contrary opinion without good tenable grounds. We believe it will benefit us all. We have always contended that railroads build up a country, and the fact that these sections without them remain dormant and unprogressive, but spring into life and progress when penetrated by them, is positive proof of their vast benefits. Everybody realizes and sees the wonderful advancement made in Brethitt county since the L. & E. came within its boundary. To discourage the building of railroads is suicidal and every public spirited citizen should be found giving them his heartiest sympathy and encouragement.

In this connection it is gratifying to note the fact that within a radius of thirty miles of Jackson two new railroads will be constructed and one extended, making a total of 10 miles of new track. The R. N. I. & B. is sure to be extended to Beattyville and the short spur of ten miles from Glencairn to Campton is without doubt a certainty, as well as the Ohio and Kentucky railroad from Jackson to Walnut Grove. A great impetus in railroad construction, it is thus seen, is now upon this section and it means a great awakening in life, activity and business, and a merging into progress and advancement never dreamed of. It requires no prophet to foretell what awaits Jackson in growth and improvement, with the advantages it already has and those that will be added in the near future.

We believe our little city has the brightest future of any town of its size in Eastern Kentucky. It is sure to grow and become great.—Jackson Hustler.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. SPENCER COOPER, : : : : Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.

THURSDAY, Feb 17, 1898.

THE appointment of a rank outsider to be postmaster at Lexington reminds us of another instance of Mr. McKinley's ingratitude and weakness in appointing Leslie Combs pension agent. That Mr. Combs is worthy and well qualified, and a gentleman withal, not a man or woman in Kentucky who knows him will for a moment question, nor can anyone blame him for his efforts to secure the place. But Mr. McKinley owes his preferment to the Republican party, of which the Grand Army and the "old soldiers" are undoubtedly the ruling spirits—the bone and sinew, as it were, and their claims should have been entitled to first consideration. However the president may try to harmonize that element in the future, it will rankle in their breasts as an insult, and the boys in blue will feel that they have been ignored. But, it is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and as the Democratic party will profit by his oversight, it was perhaps the best thing that could have happened for Kentucky. All's well that ends well.

A. HOWARD STAMPER, our present county attorney, of Campton, honored THE HERALD office with a call Tuesday, and in the course of conversation on the current events of the day, politics, etc., we incidentally learned that he will likely enter the lists for congressional honors in the coming contest. Whether this is a final determination with him will develop within the next few days, and if so, the fur will fly. Howard has the courage of his convictions and an energy that is indefatigable when he undertakes a task, even though seemingly insurmountable. He has been twice elected county attorney, but as above indicated has greater ambition, and will contest with the other candidates every inch of ground to the goal of nomination, and they will find him a foeman worthy their steel. He has a host of relatives in this, his native county, and kins people and friends galore throughout the mountains, every one of whom will work for him to the end.

THE HERALD acknowledges with profound thanks the receipt of a copy of "Essays on Social Topics," direct from the author, Lady Cook, the Viscountess de Montserrat, (nee Tennessee Claflin), Doughty House, Richmond, Surrey, England, and is assured that we have read the volume with both pleasure and profit. Beside being of unusual interest "from cover to cover," it contains a two page frontispiece portrait of Lady Cook and her husband, Sir Francis Cook, Bart., the Viscount de Montserrat. Several of Lady Cook's essays have appeared in THE HERALD recently, and our readers may confidently look forward to the enjoyment of many more during coming months, especially when we enlarge to eight pages, which will be quite soon. Lady Cook is a versatile writer, and as vigorous as versatile, but what we most admire in her is that she calls "a spade a spade," and there is nothing of the sycophant in her style.

SENOR DE LOME, Spanish Minister at Washington, recently wrote a letter to his friend, Senor Cavalejas, at Madrid, in the which he expressed a very complimentary opinion of President McKinley. Through dark or devious ways the letter got into the hands of the Cuban Junta, at New York, and its contents were made known to the State department. De Lome's recall was demanded of the Spanish government at once, and upon the hypothesis that that government would ignore the demand, thus adding insult to injury, war seemed imminent. In that case the belligerency of Cuba would have been at once acknowledged, the Dons would have got a spider in their darning and Cuba would have been free. De Lome, anticipating the action of the State department, cabled his resignation, which was accepted, and the consummation so devoutly to be wished died a bornin'.

THE Kentucky legislature is still grinding away, but the grist so far won't begin to pay the toll. They were so eager to do much that they have done less than little. And yet there is an abundance of ability in that assembly.

LUETGART, the Chicago sausage maker last week sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his wife, denies that he made sausage of her, though it has been all along suspected, and says that the U. S. Supreme court will free him.

JOHN BOSLEY, formerly editor of the Winchester Sun, then politically as rank Republican as it is now dyed in the wool Democratic, failed to win the political honors he sought in this district, and he moved to Paris. There, it seems, he met with better luck, as he was recently appointed postmaster of the place. As his party is just now lunching on the loaves and fishes, we know of no one we should rather see enjoy the feast.

THE papers announce that F. Clay Elkin has been appointed postmaster at Lexington, which leads us to inquire, Who is Elkin? And, what has become of the old line Republicans of that town: Mr. David N. Zimmerman, Colonel Jack Shehan, Major Billy Milward, Captain Howard, and a host of others who have for years been prominent in that party and persistent in their fealty to its principles? Any one of them would have made a good postmaster, and if faithful service entitles to some of the sugar, Mr. McKinley should have selected one of them. But the fact is that he is a mugwump.

SURPRISING STATISTICS.

A Poll Shows Utter Lack of Facilities For Home Study. Over 50 Per Cent of Our Homes Possess No General Reference Work.

Statistics show that only 5 per cent. of the children in this country go through high school and less than 2 per cent. go through a university. The studying children do at school merely begin the developing of the mind. It teaches them to investigate, to reason. To continue this, and reach the development and advancement which the spirit of the age demands, it is necessary that there should be continually at hand proper and reliable reference work. With these, the mind can be broadened culture and education advanced, questions answered and perplexing doubts removed. Every child, every intelligent man and woman have brought to their attention every day at least one subject on which more information is desired. With the proper books at hand and with the desire for investigation properly stimulated, the store of knowledge can daily be increased.

With the idea of ascertaining how many of the homes of our city possess reference works or other books, that would assist children in their school studies or enable them to continue them after leaving school, the Democrat has recently been collecting some statistics on the subject. The result shows that nearly 50 per cent. of the homes in Waterbury have no general reference works and over 40 per cent. actually have no dictionary of the English language. The most astonishing part of it is, that this large percentage is not made up of the poorer classes, in fact, many of our best families absolutely lack the facilities of affording their children any means of home study.

In the opinion of the Democrat, this is a matter that is worthy of the careful consideration of all parents. It would seem as though our children are entitled not only to all the benefits that the state affords in the matter of education, but that the guardian or parent is in duty bound to make it possible for the child to develop and extend his studies in the home, and nothing is better adapted to this purpose than a first class general reference work, containing a general summary of all human knowledge in every department of learning.

There are several objections urged against many of the reference works now on the market. One is, that the articles are so long and verbose that it is almost impossible to find the information sought for. Another is, that the information is out of date and therefore valueless, or that the articles are so brief as to be unsatisfactory, or so technical as to be intelligible only to the college graduate. None of these objections, however, can be urged against one or two works that have recently been completed, and the art of bookmaking has now been developed to such an extent that a work which ten years ago would have cost a fabulous sum of money to the average parent, can now actually be purchased for a nominal sum.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of knowledge that can be absorbed and the good that can be accomplished by the aid of a thoroughly good reference library. It often forms the ground work for any system of home education or private study and frequently affords the means under competent guidance of acquiring a liberal education. The Democrat hopes that these startling figures will awaken the interest of those who have the welfare of our children at heart to the necessity of supplying them with every advantage that the closing years of the nineteenth century demand. —Waterbury (Conn.) Democrat.

The same condition of affairs obtains in and about Hazel Green, and we hope our people will avail of the first opportunity offered to provide a good home reference library. Especially since one can now be bought on the installment plan and at small cost.
